Episode 4

The Burning Tower

As Soolah expects to see her two friends, Stanley and Michael torn to pieces by the tigers, a male elephant rushes into the village, stampedes the natives, draws the attention of the tigers away from the chained men. The native girl escapes, unlocks the two men, and they and Soolah rush into the jungle as the tigers fight the male elephant to the death.

After many days of privations they reach a small village of slave traders. Soolah is captured by Rame, the leader and the two men are locked in the tower of the inn.

Garbo and his cavalcade arrive. Rame and he are friends. He delivers up Soolah to Garbo, who cancels his debt with the promise that he will kill the two Americans.

A man dies in the inn of a pestilence, and the doctor orders the place burned. They set fire to it, and Soolah leaves on Garbo's elephant on the next lap of their journey towards The Lost City. Looking back she sees the inn on fire, knowing her friends are in the tower and will be burned to death.

The flames and smoke reach the tower, and Stanley and Michael are about to burn to death, while Rame and his men shout and dance about with joy.
